Assessment Retreat Ideas: Topics and Agenda Items

In our January newsletter we shared best practices in shaping assessment retreats. Here are some ideas and additional suggestions to consider when designing your assessment retreat agenda. Here are some ideas that we find effective as well as some tips for bringing the assessment to the table.

Suggested retreat topics:
- Annual GE Workshop: Results and Future Actions
- Analyzing Rubrics
- A publication from the UNM Office of Assessment & Academic Program Review

APRs at NMHEAR
The APRs (previously at the New Mexico Higher Education Assistance Review) have now transitioned to NMHEAR (New Mexico Higher Education Administration Review). APRs meet twice per academic year to discuss and analyze the assessment results and recommendations. This is an excellent opportunity to bring feedback to campus committees and departments, as well as discuss the goals of the APRs.

Retreats can build toward retreats吃完饭, faculty development of the Carnegie report and the work of the Office

Closing:
- Review the strategic plan for the next 5 years
- Present data by degree concentrations, test scores, and program outcomes
- Analyze this data via targeted discussions
- Present data by department
- Analyze this data via targeted discussions
- Open and close the retreat

NEXT STEPS:
- Share this retreat work with the unit/dept/college/school
- Develop action items for the next APR mid-cycles
- For those who have not participated in the mid-cycles, now is the time to get involved

Assessment Retreat Ideas:
- Rubrics can be very useful in measuring assessment outcomes.
- Rubrics can be very useful in measuring assessment outcomes.
- Rubrics can be very useful in measuring assessment outcomes.

APR Workshops Fall 2024

Assessment & APR Quarterly Newsletter

Dear UNM Community,

As we move into the spring and summer, we are excited to announce the development of the online resource and community engagement program. This resource is designed to support the needs of UNM faculty, staff, and students as they navigate the assessment landscape.

We encourage you to explore the resource and provide feedback to help shape its development. Your input will be valuable as we continue to refine and improve the resource. We look forward to hearing from you and engaging in conversation. Please contact us at assessment.unm.edu or apr.unm.edu with any questions or comments.

Best regards,
Office of Assessment & Academic Program Review

Important Event: Annual Assessment & APR Conference
May 19th
UNM Administrative Building
Assessment & APR Conference

June 30th
UNM Administrative Building
Assessment & APR Conference

Contact us at assessment.unm.edu or apr.unm.edu for more information.

The Art & Science of Assessment has collaborated with TechDays! Save the date for the techdays.unm.edu event:
- Friday, September 27 10-11am
- Space to Work with TechDays Event:
- Ș

The TechDays event is now a virtual event and is open to all UNM faculty, staff, and students. The event will provide an opportunity to network, learn about new technologies, and explore opportunities for collaboration. Please visit the TechDays website for more information.

Contact us at assessment.unm.edu or apr.unm.edu with any questions or comments.

Best regards,
Office of Assessment & Academic Program Review

Dear UNM Community,

As we move into the spring and summer, we are excited to announce the development of the online resource and community engagement program. This resource is designed to support the needs of UNM faculty, staff, and students as they navigate the assessment landscape.

We encourage you to explore the resource and provide feedback to help shape its development. Your input will be valuable as we continue to refine and improve the resource. We look forward to hearing from you and engaging in conversation. Please contact us at assessment.unm.edu or apr.unm.edu with any questions or comments.

Best regards,
Office of Assessment & Academic Program Review

Important Event: Annual Assessment & APR Conference
May 19th
UNM Administrative Building
Assessment & APR Conference

June 30th
UNM Administrative Building
Assessment & APR Conference

Conferences

Dear UNM Community,

As we move into the spring and summer, we are excited to announce the development of the online resource and community engagement program. This resource is designed to support the needs of UNM faculty, staff, and students as they navigate the assessment landscape.

We encourage you to explore the resource and provide feedback to help shape its development. Your input will be valuable as we continue to refine and improve the resource. We look forward to hearing from you and engaging in conversation. Please contact us at assessment.unm.edu or apr.unm.edu with any questions or comments.

Best regards,
Office of Assessment & Academic Program Review